

The world of Amateur Radio is advancing at an alarming rate. Being licensed for 10 years I fully agree with the ARRL's proposal to re-structure the community, however, I support dropping the code requirement all-together. I don't understand why a "Mode" of operation should govern the class of license. If this is the case then the license structure should be set by the mode of operation. The license class should be set by privileges only and not by modes.
